

here in indiana, we have a law that has worked very well and i would not like to see it made less restrictive by a federal law. where we used to receive three or four calls a week (always at meal time it seemed)we now receive less than one per month on average. also it was so annoying to receive the calls where no one answered until about the third time you said hello. this was just not right that a telemarketer could take my time while he decided which line to answer from his computer.
